Introduction

Create wild, weird and often funny postcards together & establish a group's creative confidence.

Necessary tools (what you need)

- Pick an online whiteboard tool that allows you to use a large, zoomable canvas.

Steps

1. Create a post-it note for each participant and arrange these in a circle, with space underneath for an image. Arrange people in groups of five where possible.
2. Invite the participants to the activity: We will create something together in the next couple of minutes. I will guide you through a sequence of simple tasks. Please do as directed and – especially in the last two steps - do not do more than as directed.
3. In the first step, have participants draw their first image and add it below their nametag in the whiteboard. For the following steps, each person will drag their image and pass it to the next person in the circle:
 - Draw a form - pass it to the left (or right - stick to one direction)
 - Make something out of the form you got from your neighbor (an object or a person, an animal) - pass on
 - Add context to the drawing you got from your neighbor - pass on

- Add action or drama to the drawing you got. Refrain from using text, this will be another step! - pass on
- Add text

Tips & Tricks

- When facilitating full group discussion, we would recommend that participants use non-verbal means to indicate they would like to speak. You can use tools like Zoom's nonverbal feedback tools, a reaction emoji, or just have people put their hands up. The facilitator can then invite that person to talk.
- If you are not using an online whiteboard, we'd recommend using a collaboration tool such as Google Docs to place and pass your images, create a heading for each participant under which they place their image.

The exercise is successfully completed when? Conclusion?

Establish creative confidence; collaborate effortlessly; build capacity for working together as a workshop-group.
